Temporary, Permanent, and Part-time Assignments: Will Nursing Needs Change With COVID-19?

If there is one thing we know about COVID-19, it's that the healthcare industry will never be the same again once we get past this crisis. The novel coronavirus outbreak that could potentially keep us contained in our homes for months on end is significant enough to reshape our society in lasting ways, including changing how we seek medical care. As a result of the pandemic, traditional healthcare settings have become inundated with patients in need of critical care and we have seen telemedicine emerge as the new "normal" for non-emergency visits. It follows then, that temporary, permanent, and part-time nursing assignments may also change with COVID-19, as hospitals and other healthcare facilities implement changes to keep up with evolving healthcare needs. Learn more about how COVID-19 is affecting nursing needs.
